

Black Rock Cove

For Solo Tenor and String Quartet.
(approx. run time 03:50)

Words and Music By Thomas Daish

There they lay, their soles submerged,
in the sonorous tide of eternity.
Age enduring with crescent fang
coloured by decay of years
they smite their hunter, the oceans tears.

The tide turns, the calm's past,
elements assault the fragile shore
howling winds, blinding forks!

The cliffs may fail, the land may fall
but none can break the beaches jaw!

What then will be, when years pass
and if the fang should blunt?
So too shall the land cease,
the cherished, eternal lost.
